

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT

CONSUMER

BEHAVIOUR

SUBMITTED BY:

S.JAGADEESH BABU	-Y213076538
B.NAGA NEERAJ	-Y213076431
CH.GANGA NARENDRA	-Y213076435
CH.U.K.S.SASTRY	-Y213076437
P.SARAN KUMAR	-Y213076522
MANIKANTA	-Y213076493

ASN DEGREE COLLEGE,TENALI

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT

CONSUMER BEHAVIOUR

SUBMITTED BY:

S.JAGADEESH BABU -Y213076538

ASN DEGREE COLLEGE,TENALI

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT

CONSUMER BEHAVIOUR

SUBMITTED BY:

B.NAGA NEERAJ

-Y213076431

ASN DEGREE COLLEGE,TENALI

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT

CONSUMER BEHAVIOUR

SUBMITTED BY:

CH.GANGA NARENDRA -Y213076435

ASN DEGREE COLLEGE,TENALI

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT

CONSUMER BEHAVIOUR

SUBMITTED BY:

CH.U.K.S.SASTRY -Y213076437

ASN DEGREE COLLEGE,TENALI

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT

CONSUMER BEHAVIOUR

SUBMITTED BY:

P.SARAN KUMAR -Y213076522

ASN DEGREE COLLEGE,TENALI

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT

CONSUMER BEHAVIOUR

SUBMITTED BY:

V. MANIKANTA - Y213076493

ASN DEGREE COLLEGE, TENALI

1.INTRODUCTION ABOUT THE VILLAGE/HABITATION

STUDENT NAME:S.JAGADEESH BABU

LOCATION:CHAKRAYAPALEM

Chakrayapalem is a village in Guntur district of the Indian state of Andhra Pradesh. It is located in Kollipara mandal of Tenali revenue division. The village contains around 3000 population and is very near to Tenali (7 km). The main occupation of the people is farming.

EDUCATION

A government school is available for children class 1 to 7.

HEALTH

There are two RMP doctors practising in this village in PHCs.

AGRICULTURE

Paddy, Maize and Black Gram are agriculture commodities grow in this village. 7 hours agricultural power supply in summer and 7 hours agricultural power supply in winter is available in this village. Total irrigated area in this village is 476 hectares from canals 476 hectares is the Source of irrigation. Agriculture Paddy, Maize and Black Gram are agriculture commodities grow in this village. 7 hours agricultural power supply in summer and 7 hours agricultural power supply in winter is available in this village.

Total irrigated area in this village is 476 hectares from canals 476 hectares is the Source of irrigation.

TRANSPORTATION

There is good transportation facilities of bus,auto etc.

DRINKING WATER AND SANITATION

Untreated Tap Water Supply round the year and in summer available. Hand Pump and Tube Wells/Boreholes are other Drinking Water sources. Drainage System Available in this Village. There is no system to Collect garbage on street. Drain water is discharged directly into agricultural fields.

COMMUNICATION

Telephone signals are good. There is cable TV service.

Post office service.Online courier service.

People here have the feeling of brotherhood.They celebrate festivals together like a family.

RELIGIOUS ATTRACTIONS

The famous Chandramouleswara swamy temple,Lord Rama temple,Hanuman statue around 15 feet.

STUDENT NAME:B.NAGA NEERAJ

LOCATION:ADAVULADEEVI

Adavuladeevi is a Village in Nizampatnam Mandal in Guntur District of Andhra Pradesh State, India. It belongs to Andhra region . It is located 65 KM towards South from District headquarters Guntur. 4 KM from Nizampatnam. 343 KM from State capital Hyderabad

Adavuladeevi Pin code is 522262 and postal head office is Kuchinapudi .

Gurunadhanagar (4 KM) , Pragnam (6 KM) , Kuchinapudi (6 KM) , Thummala (8 KM) , Amudalapalli (8 KM) are the nearby Villages to Adavuladeevi. Adavuladeevi is surrounded by Nagaram Mandal towards North , Repalle Mandal towards East , Nagayalanka Mandal towards East , Cherukupalle Mandal towards North .

Repalle , Ponnur , Bapatla , Tenali are the nearby Cities to Adavuladeevi.

It is near to bay of bengal. There is a chance of humidity in the weather.

Adavuladeevi Local Language is Telugu. Adavuladeevi Village Total population is 8594 and number of houses are 2602. Female Population is 49.0%.

EDUCATION

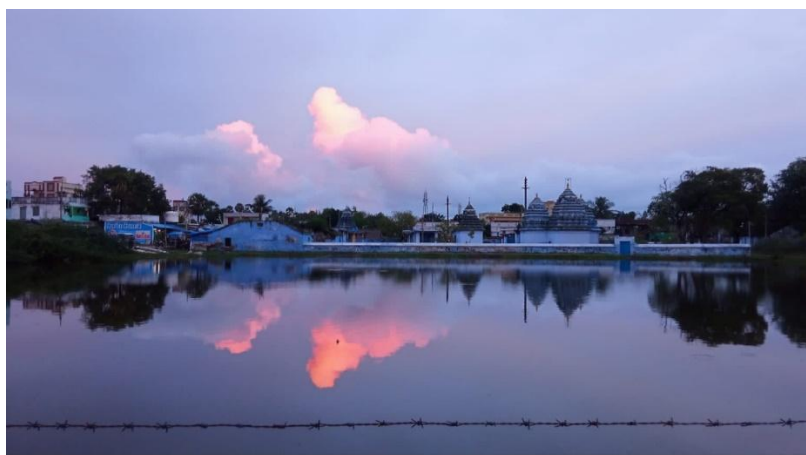

Village literacy rate is 51.8% and the Female Literacy rate is 22.3%.There are ZPHS schools and Inter colleges in this village.

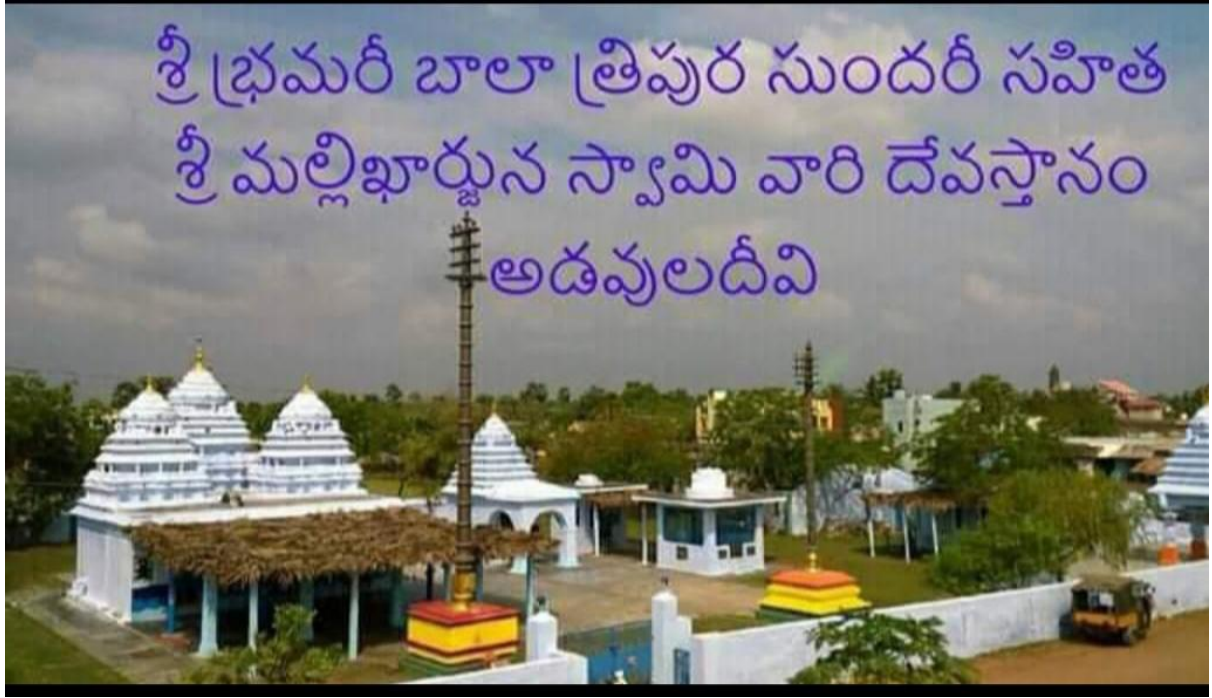

HEALTH

There are three PHCs and a veterinary hospital.

DRINKING WATER AND SANITATION

Untreated Tap Water Supply all round the year and in summer available. Hand Pump and Tube Wells/Boreholes are other Drinking Water sources. Drainage System Available in this Village. There is system to Collect garbage on street. Drain water is discharged directly into agricultural fields.

AGRICULTURE

The count of employed person of Adavuladeevi village is 4496 still 4098 are non-working. And out of 4496 employed individual 307 individuals are completely dependent on cultivation.

Paddy, Maize and Black Gram are agriculture commodities grow in this village. 7 hours agricultural power supply in summer and 7 hours agricultural power supply in winter is available in this village. Total irrigated area in this village is 756 hectares from canals 756 hectares is the Source of irrigation. Agriculture Paddy, Maize and Black Gram are agriculture commodities grow in this village. 7 hours agricultural power supply in summer and 7 hours agricultural power supply in winter is available in this village.

Total irrigated area in this village is 756 hectares from canals 756 hectares is the Source of irrigation.

PEOPLE

People here celebrate different festivals together and have the feeling of brotherhood.

STUDENT NAME:CH.GANGA NARENDRA

LOCATION:PERUKALAPUDI

Perukalapudi is a small Village/hamlet in Duggirala Mandal in Guntur District of Andhra Pradesh State, India. It comes under Perukalapudi Panchayath. It belongs to Andhra region . It is located 28 KM towards East from District headquarters Guntur. 2 KM from Duggirala. 300 KM from State capital Hyderabad Perakalapudi Pin code is 522305 and postal head office is Pedapalem .

Tummapudi (3 KM) , Srungarapuram, (4 KM) , Emani (4 KM) , Manchikalapudi (5 KM) , Duggirala (5 KM) are the nearby Villages to Perukalapudi. Perukalapudi is surrounded by Tadepalle Mandal towards North , Kollipara Mandal towards South , Mangalagiri Mandal towards west , Penamaluru Mandal towards North .

Mangalagiri , Tenali , Vijayawada , Guntur are the nearby Cities to Perukalapudi.

This Place is in the border of the Guntur District and Krishna District. Krishna District Penamaluru is North towards this place .

Perakulapudi Local Language is Telugu. Perakulapudi Village Total population is 4884 and number of houses are 1492.

EDUCATION

Female Population is 49.2%. Village literacy rate is 57.9% and the Female Literacy rate is 26.2%. There are ZPHS schools and Inter colleges in this village.

AGRICULTURE

Paddy, Maize and Black Gram are agriculture commodities grow in this village. 7 hours agricultural power supply in summer and 7 hours agricultural power supply in winter is available in this village. Total irrigated area in this village is 950 hectares from canals 950 hectares is the Source of irrigation. Agriculture Paddy, Maize and Black Gram are agriculture commodities grow in this village. 7 hours agricultural power supply in summer and 7 hours agricultural power supply in winter is available in this village.

Total irrigated area in this village is 950 hectares from canals 950 hectares is the Source of irrigation.

HEALTH

There are PHCs and many near by hospitals, and also a veterinary hospital.

SERVICES

There are banks and post offices. Communication signals are good.

PEOPLE

People here celebrate festivals together and have the feeling of brotherhood.

STUDENT NAME:CH.U.K.S.SASTRY

LOCATION:Pidaparru

Pidaparru is a small village in Guntur district of the Indian state of Andhra Pradesh. It is located in Kollipara mandal of Tenali revenue division. The pincode of this village is 522304.

The main occupation of the people living here is agriculture. The number of people living here are around 2984. The literacy percentage of the village is 80%.

EDUCATION

There is government school in the village and there are many private schools in surrounding areas.

AGRICULTURE

Paddy, Maize and Black Gram are agriculture commodities grow in this village. 7 hours agricultural power supply in summer and 7 hours agricultural power supply in winter is available in this village. Total irrigated area in this village is 256 hectares from canals 256 hectares is the Source of irrigation. Agriculture Paddy, Maize and Black Gram are agriculture commodities grow in this village. 7 hours agricultural power supply in summer and 7 hours agricultural power supply in winter is available in this village.

Total irrigated area in this village is 256 hectares from canals 256 hectares is the Source of irrigation.

HEALTH

There is a PHC in this village and a veterinary hospital.

COMMUNICATION

There is a dedicated bus service to this village. Cable service and mobile signals are good.

RELIGIOUS CENTRE

There is a famous Lord Shiva temple.

PEOPLE

People here celebrate festivals together and have the feeling of brotherhood.

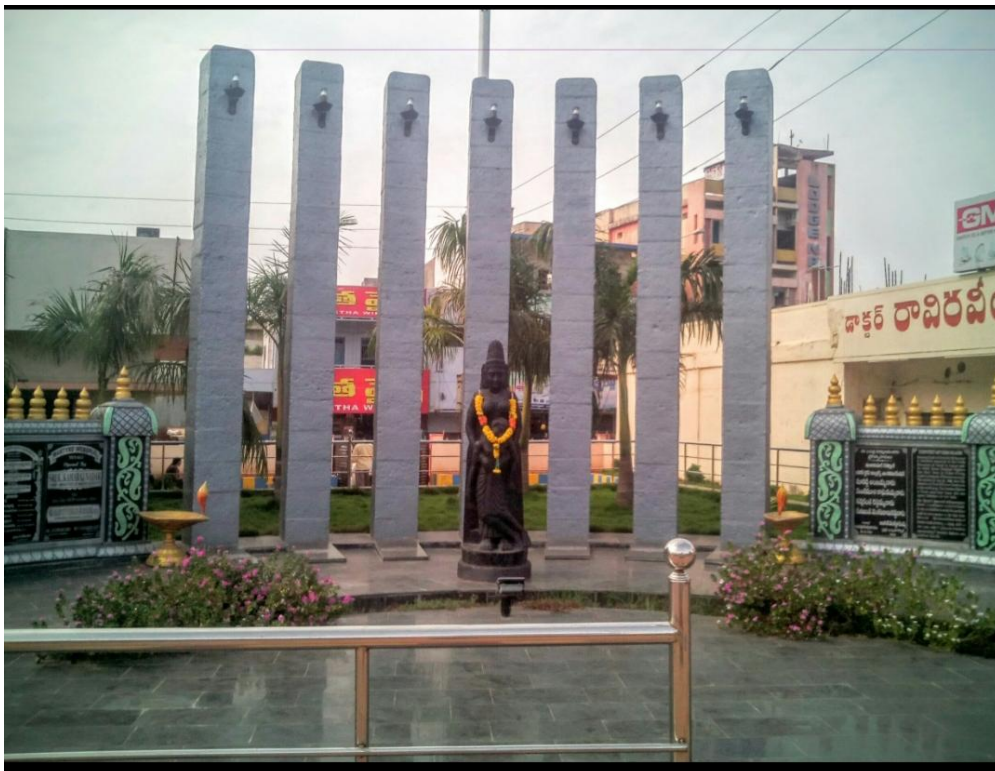

STUDENT NAME:P.SARAN KUMAR

LOCATION: TENALI

Tenali is a city in Guntur district of the Indian state of Andhra Pradesh. It is a municipality and the headquarters of Tenali Mandal and Tenali revenue division. The city is renowned for art, culture, drama and hence, it is often referred with the nickname Andhra Paris. It is one of the twelve urban local bodies in Andhra Pradesh Capital Region and the twelfth most populous city in the state, with a population of 1,99,345 as of 2011. Tenali City is also part of Andhra Pradesh Capital Region Development Authority (APCRDA).

The city is notable for drama, fine arts, literature and poetry. The iconic Martyr's Memorial at Ranarang Chowk denotes the impact of the city on the Indian freedom struggle during the Quit India Movement. The people of Tenali had responded to Mahatma Gandhi's call and organised a bandh on 12 August 1942. The British police had opened fire on them, and seven people had been killed on the spot, at Morrispetta which later came to be known as Ranarang Chowk. After Independence, seven pillars had been erected in the memory of the seven martyrs, and a statue of Mother India with a baby in her arms had been installed at Ranarang Chowk.

It was the domicile of doyen of several social and revolutionary moments viz. Non Bramin Movement 1920 (Suryadevara raghavaiah Chowdary), Rationalist movement 1940 (Kaviraju Sri Tripuraneni), Radical Humanist Movement 1950 (Sri M.N. Roy) etc.

ECONOMY OF TENALI

Tenali thrives on trade and agriculture. Irrigation in the Western Delta, the region in which the city lies, is supported by water from the Krishna river. Paddy is the major crop cultivated, producing on an average of 22–24 bags per acre. Major crops include black gram, maize, and jowar. The Tenali Agriculture Market Yard is used for trading and exporting agricultural products.

The city being a part of the capital region, is recognized as one of the future growth centers. It is also a part of the Tenali–Ponnur growth corridor.

TRANSPORT OF TENALI

Tenali has a total road length of 410.00 km (254.76). Guntur, Mangalagiri, Burripalem and Ponnur roads are the arterial roads for road connectivity to the city. The road towards Guntur connects with SH 48 at Narakodur. The Tenali–Mangalagiri road, the Tenali–Narakodur road, and the Tenali–Chandole road are a part of the core road network of the district, which connects the city with Mangalagiri, Narakodur and Chandole respectively.

Bus and rail transport are the major modes of public transport for inter district and interstate commuting. The bus transport is provided by Tenali bus station, owned and operated by APSRTC. The station is also equipped with a bus depot for storage and maintenance of buses. It operates bus services to nearby and intrastate destinations.

The city has one of the largest railway station[citation needed] that is well connected to major cities like Guntur, Visakhapatnam, Vijayawada, Hyderabad, Chennai. As it is a junction railway station, the trains are more frequent to any of the cities. Tenali Junction provides rail connectivity to the city and is classified as an A-category station[citation needed] in the Vijayawada railway division of South Central Railway zone. It is an important junction station on the line between the Howrah–Chennai and the New Delhi–Chennai sections, which also connects the Tenali–Repalle branch line and the Guntur–Tenali section.

EDUCATION OF TENALI

The primary and secondary school education is imparted by government, aided, and private schools, under the School Education Department of the state. As per the school information report for the academic year 2015–16, there are a total of 71 schools, comprising 26 private schools, 44 municipal schools, and 1 other type of school. The total number of students enrolled in primary, upper primary and high schools of the city is 11,544. Adarsh Public School, Sharon Talent School St. John's Public School, Kendriya Vidyalaya, and Westberry School are some of the public and private schools under CBSE and state boards. Yalavarthy Veda Pathashala, one of the oldest vedic schools founded in 1894, is located in Gandhi Nagar area of the city. There are 20 private aided junior colleges, such as the Taluk Junior college, the JMJ college for Women, the VSR and NVR college, and the Dr. B. R. Ambedkar Memorial Junior college. Additionally, fourteen unaided junior colleges provide undergraduate education. The JMJ college for women and the VSR and NVR college are the two autonomous colleges under Acharya Nagarjuna University. There are colleges for different fields of study, such as nursing, Government Industrial Training Institute, and other institutes for vocational courses.

STUDENT NAME: V.MANIKANTA

LOCATION: NARAKODURU

Narakoduru is a village in Guntur district of the Indian state of Andhra Pradesh. It is the headquarters of Bollapalle mandal in Tenali revenue division. It is located in Chebrolu mandal of Tenali revenue division.

Narakoduru is situated to the northwest of the mandal headquarters, Chebrolu, at 16.226258°N 80.514671°E. It is spread over an area of 1,209 ha (2,990 acres).

POPULATION

As of 2011 Census of India, Narakoduru had a population of 6,564 with 1800 households. The total population constitutes 3,250 males and 3,314 females —a sex ratio of 1020 females per 1000 males. 575 children are in the age group of 0–6 years, of which 307 are boys and 268 are girls —a ratio of 873 per 1000. The average literacy rate stands at 72.32% with 4,331 literates, significantly higher than the state average of 67.41%.

GOVERNANCE

Narakoduru gram panchayat is the local self-government of the village. It is divided into wards and each ward is represented by a ward member. The village forms a part of Andhra Pradesh Capital Region and is under the jurisdiction of APCRDA.

HEALTH

There are PHCs and many near by hospitals, and also a veterinary hospital.

TRANSPORT

Local transport include, city bus services operated by APSRTC from NTR bus station to Chebrolu. The State Highway 48 passes through Narakoduru, that connects Guntur and Chirala. Tenali–Narakoduru road intersects Guntur–Chirala road at Narakoduru junction. Rural roads connects the village with Ananthavarapadu, Gundavaram, Pathareddypalem and Vejendla.

EDUCATION

As per the school information report for the academic year 2018–19, the village has a total of 5 schools. These schools include 1 private school and 4 Zilla/Mandal Parishad schools.

SERVICES

There are banks and post offices. Communication signals are good.

AGRICULTURE

Paddy, Maize and Black Gram are agriculture commodities grow in this village. 7 hours agricultural power supply in summer and 7 hours agricultural power supply in winter is available in this village. Total irrigated area in this village is 2560 hectares from canals 2560 hectares is the Source of irrigation. Agriculture Paddy, Maize and Black Gram are agriculture commodities grow in this village. 7 hours agricultural power supply in summer and 7 hours agricultural power supply in winter is available in this village.

Total irrigated area in this village is 2560 hectares from canals 2560 hectares is the Source of irrigation.

PEOPLE

People here have the feeling of brotherhood and celebrate the festivals together.

2.PROBLEMS IDENTIFIED AND OBJECTIVES

Main Difficulties of Consumer Behaviour Research: The main difficulties involved in the conduct of consumer behaviour research are:

- (1) A consumer may have multiple buying motives and is unable to express his main motive. This poses a challenge to the researcher in the identification of the basic buying motive.
- (2) A consumer may hesitate to explain his buying motive or give a misstatement of his motive. This misleads the researcher to identify the real motive for buying.
- (3) A consumer may be so ignorant that he cannot understand his inner urge that prompts him to buy or not to buy. The researcher does not get any clue to identify the buying motive.
- (4) A consumer's personality, his behavioural attitudes, beliefs and values undergo change with the changes in socio-psycho-economic structure. His buying motives also change on this account. Thus, the study of the consumer behaviour is not a one-shot affair but requires consistent and regular updating from period to period.
- (5) The techniques used in the study of consumer behaviour are of empirical nature and not precise like mathematics or science. Thus, conclusions drawn may be imperfect and unsuitable for implementation.

OBJECTIVES OF THIS PROJECT:

- 1.To understand what consumer behaviour is and the different types of consumers.
- 2.To understand the relationship between consumer behaviour and the marketing concept, the societal marketing concept, as well as segmentation, targeting and positioning.
- 3.To understand the relationship between consumer behaviour and customer value, satisfaction, trust and retention.
- 4.To understand how new technologies are enabling marketers to better satisfy the needs and wants of the consumers.
- 5.To understand how marketers are increasingly able to reach consumers wherever consumers wish to be reached.
- 6.To understand how the world's economic condition is leading to consumption instability

3.SURVEY QUESTIONS

- 1.What is your monthly income?
- 2.Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?
- 3.Do you shop online or offline?
- 4.What do you look for while buying a product and why?
- 5.Are you a brand loyal customer and why you are loyal to that brand?
- 6.Do you perform any research about the product before purchasing it?
- 7.Is price of the product a concern for you?
- 8.Do you bargain or not?
- 9.Do you consider the product's quality and its durability or not?
- 10.What is the main intent of you for buying a product?
- 11.Do you like to buy a product that is newly entered into the market?
- 12.Do you get motivated to buy a product by watching a advertisement by
Your favourite star?
- 13.What would be your main reason of you to reject a product?
- 14.Do you have trust in online E-commerce companies?
- 15.Are you a discount seeker?
- 16.Who influences you more while buying a product?

QUESTIONS TO EXPERTS OF PRODUCT MARKETING?

- 17.How do you attract a consumer?
- 18.What marketing techniques you use in promoting a product?
- 19.What is the main problem with the consumer?
- 20.Why it is important to understand consumer behaviour?

4.INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS OF THE PROBLEM

Here the main problem of a seller or a promoter is unable to understand the clear picture of consumer behaviour.so,it is important to analyse the consumer behaviour in detail.

Who is a consumer?

A consumer is a person who is the final user of a product or service.

What is the difference between a customer and a consumer?

A customer is a person who buys the product but consumer is the person who use that product finally.So,it is important to understand the behaviour of consumer but not customer.

What is consumer behaviour?

Consumer behaviour is the way people choose and use your products and services.

It's a holistic marketing concept that refers to how people behave throughout the entire lifecycle of your product—from discovery to purchase, use, and disposal. It encompasses patterns of:

- Purchase behaviour, such as when a person shops and how they pay for their purchase
- Product usage, such as how often the customer uses your product and if they're satisfied with their purchase
- Product disposal, such as how long a customer holds onto your product and whether or not they resell it when they're done

A consumer behaviour study looks at the complex cocktail of thoughts, feelings, and habits that drive key decisions in the customer journey—like making an initial purchase, repurchasing a favourite product, or leaving an online review. It answers “why” and “how” people buy and use your product.

What influences consumer behaviour?

While rational considerations like price, convenience, and quality drive consumer behaviour, so do emotions, desires, and habits. In fact, irrational drivers often have a more potent effect. Personal beliefs and preferences, along with social influences, environmental stimuli, and marketing messages, all influence how consumers respond to a product.

In psychological terms, consumer responses can be either:

- Mental (or “cognitive”), such as deciding to purchase a bigger car for a growing family
- Emotional (or “affective”), such as going to the mall for retail therapy after a tough day
- Habitual (or “conative”), such as always reaching for the same brand of cereal at the supermarket

Every person has a “black box” of mental, emotional, and behavioural factors that affect their buying behaviour. The makeup of each person’s black box depends on their personal values, lifestyle, relationships, consumption habits, brand loyalties, demographics, and personality.

FACTORS AFFECTING CONSUMER BEHAVIOUR

Here are the various factors that influence consumer behaviour in several ways: -

CULTURAL FACTORS

Can you think of selling chopsticks in India, not right? The Chinese people prefer eating with chopsticks while some people in India eat using their hands as well. This difference is due to cultural factors.

Cultural factors are the most influential determinant of consumers behaviour. Every country has its own kind of culture. A child grown in India will have different cultural values than a child grown in some other country.

Within different cultures, there are smaller groups based on characteristics like religions, nationality, geographic location, racial groups etc.; are called Subcultures. They give specific identification to people. An example of this could be Racing Bike; it is specifically made and designed for racers.

SOCIAL FACTORS

The social factors affecting consumer behaviour includes the following components:

Reference Groups

we are social beings, and we always want to be around a group of people. There a few groups of people who are always around us, and they have a direct or indirect influence on our behaviour and attitudes. These are called the Reference Groups.

Don't most of us used to want the bicycle that our friends used to have in our childhood? A few groups like family, friends, colleagues; with whom we interact regularly are called the Primary Groups.

On the other hand, we have few groups with whom we interact less and conversations are required to be formal; these groups are called the Secondary Groups. But how do these groups influence our behaviour as a consumer?

The below mentioned three points will answer this better:

- Let's say, most of the times you get to know about the latest cool gadgets from your friends and colleagues only; this means that they expose us to new behaviours and lifestyle.
- Now, you also need to have the same product. Hence, they influence our behaviour and self-image.
- You want to buy that cool gadget from a few specific brands only; they create a pressure of conformity.

Apart from this, there are also certain groups to which you want to belong to but you are not currently a part of it. Suppose you cannot afford expensive designer clothes today but someday you want then that group which buys premium designer clothes is an Aspirational Group for you. Whereas, the groups whose values and attitudes we reject are called the dissociative groups.

Now, marketers reach and influence these groups through an Opinion leader; he is a person who informs and gives information about various products and brands to his group members. They have a good influence on their group members.

Cliques

According to some communication researchers, our society comprises small groups, known as cliques, and their members interact with each other frequently. This scenario can be compared to the different clubs and committees in B-schools, where all the students from different clubs and committees (cliques) interact with each other.

Now, as a promoter of any event of your B-school, you would want cliques to talk more about your event with each other. For that, you will find people who have networks in most of the cliques. These people are known as bridges.

Many companies do pay money to influencers to promote their product in different cliques anonymously. This tactic is known as shill marketing or stealth marketing.

You must have also heard that many of the reviews on digital platforms are being given by the people who are in some financial contract with the company. Another interesting example could be of some comedy shows where there are anonymous people who laugh while sitting in the audience.

Family

This is the most important determinant in influencing the buying and deciding characteristics of consumers. We acquire a lot of values, attitudes, beliefs and perspectives from our family.

In most of the Indian families, the women are considered to be the main purchasing member; hence they influence the buying decision the most. The marketers of specific products very cleverly target these women to promote their product.

Roles and Status

All of us play multiple roles in lives, the roles that we play influences our behaviour and choices. The role that we play decides our "status". This also influences the kind of products and services that we use. Most of the times, we like those brands and products which relates to our identity that emerges from the kind of roles we play.

You must have observed that people who are fit and muscular generally prefer to buy Royal Enfield among other bikes. This is nothing but a buying behaviour arising out of social factors.

PERSONAL FACTORS

After the cultural and social factors that affect consumer behaviour comes personal factors. Our age, lifestyle, core values, attitude, beliefs, occupation etc. are the factors that influence our behaviour as a consumer. Let us understand each of the components of personal factors influencing consumer behaviour:

Age and Life Cycle Stage

Our choice of food, clothes, gadgets and other products is directly influenced by our age. There are many products that we prefer only during a specific phase of our life, called the life cycle. These phases could be marriage, student-life, career, illness, retirement etc.

Marketers mostly target the consumers during different life cycle stages of its consumers in various ways. You must have seen many famous pregnant actresses are shown in advertisements of the products which are for to be mothers.

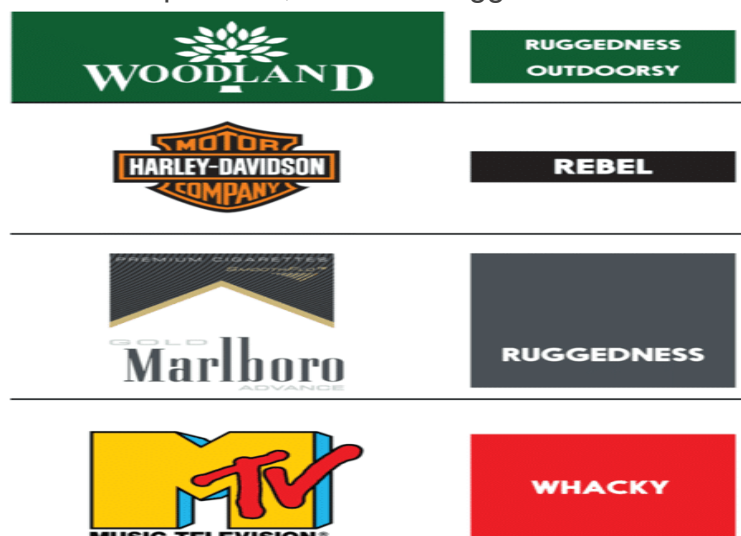

Occupation

The buying behaviour of consumers changes with their occupation. Marketers identify these occupational groups and customise their products accordingly.

Personality and Self-Concept

- Personality refers to our individual characteristics and attributes that influence the way we behave in and react to different situations. The different attributes that affect one's buying behaviour can be self-confidence, dominance, autonomy, adaptability, defensiveness etc.
- Like us, brands also have their own personalities. We, as consumers, always try to relate the brand personality with our own personality. We prefer to choose the products which resemble to our personality. The brand personalities are often identified using following traits-
- Sincerity (down to earth, honest, wholesome, and cheerful)
- Excitement (daring, imaginative)
- Competence (reliable, intelligent, successful)
- Sophistication (upper-class and charming)
- Ruggedness (outdoorsy and tough)

Let's take an example of each of the brand that can be related to one of these characteristics. HUL and its products can be related to 'sincerity', MTV on 'excitement', CNN on 'competence', Levi's on 'ruggedness'.

Consumers often try to match what they think of themselves to the brand's personality. Hence, you, as future marketers, should understand the personality of its target audience in order to influence its consumers.

Lifestyle and Values

Lifestyle is referred to as the way we live every day, conduct our day-to-day activities, behave and react to external stimulus etc. Lifestyles are often shaped by two factors – time constraint or money constraint.

Lakme introduced its BB cream, all-in-one approach for a skincare routine, for the women consumers who don't have enough time to apply different products. Xiaomi India offers mobile phones with multiple features at relatively lower prices for the people who prefer to spend less money on mobile phones and believes in saving value.

PSYCHOLOGICAL FACTORS

As a marketer, one needs to understand the thinking process of its consumers. The marketer should know how outside marketing stimuli affects the consumer's thinking process, which ultimately affects the buying behaviour. There are four psychological processes or factors that affect consumer behaviour:

Motivation

Motivation has two core components – one is direction, i.e., we select one goal over the other and second is the intensity, i.e., we work with vigour to achieve that goal.

Here, in the marketing context, the marketing activities will influence consumers to purchase the product to buy that product and decide the intensity with which consumers will desire it. Here are the two most famous motivational theories-

- Maslow's Theory – This theory says that humans will satisfy his most important needs first and then move on to next need. According to this theory, human needs can be arranged in a hierarchy in the following way. We need to satisfy our physiological needs to survive when they are fulfilled; we require safety needs to be satisfied. Like this way, come the other three needs. Here, marketers should understand that at what level of hierarchy their consumers are and what are their needs and requirements. Their needs can be satisfied accordingly then.

- Herzberg's Theory – There are two factors according to this theory, one is satisfaction, and the other is its opposite called dissatisfaction. There are factors that cause dissatisfaction, for example – You ordered clothes for you, and they are not adequately stitched, then this is a source of dissatisfaction for you as a consumer. Absence of these factors will not motivate your consumers to buy your product. Satisfying factors like unique design, quality, features should be present in order to motivate consumers to buy your product.

Perception

Consumers' behaviour is largely influenced by how he perceives the marketing activities happening around. Perception is the process of how you select, organize and interpret the information around you. Consumers perceive various kinds of information through their senses which has also led to Sensory Marketing's evolution.

We all perceive different things differently; one object will not have the same perception for any of the two beings. This is because it all depends upon three perceptual processes; these are as follows:

- Selective Attention – We see a lot of brand promotions and advertisements in a day, but we cannot pay attention to all. We only pay attention to things which attract our attention. Hence, marketers need to work hard to design brand promotions in such a way that attracts consumers' attention.

- Selective Distortion – When I give you two exactly the same products and tell you that one is branded and the other one is unbranded. You will most likely pick the branded one and like it more than unbranded one, even though both were exactly the same. Why? This is because of the selective distortions that we hold.
- Selective Retention – I am sure you all must have remembered that 'Washing Powder Nirma' advertisement. Not everything that we notice and pay attention to can be remembered and retained by us. Marketers should work towards how to make their advertisements attractive enough so that consumers will retain it.

Why consumer behaviour important?

When your business understands what drives key consumer decisions, including purchase decisions, it can better position your products to appeal to your target population. In the long run, consumer behaviour can also affect product development, as information about which features consumers prefer and how they use your product can also be applied to product design.

The insights from a consumer behaviour study can help your business make decisions like:

- How to position your product in the market, based on what consumers think and feel about your product compared to competitors'
- Where to advertise and sell your product, based on the ways your target population researches and shops for products
- How to make the decision to purchase your product easier for consumers by catering to their instincts, impulses, and habits
- When to seek reviews and referrals, based on how people use your product after purchase

By studying consumer behaviour, you can get a better understanding of what drives purchase decisions, customer retention, and brand loyalty in your target populations. Once you've identified patterns of consumer behaviour, you can predict how your target market will respond to marketing campaigns and new product launches before they happen.

Of course, some parts of your target market might respond differently to different stimuli, based on their individual thoughts and feelings. The results of a consumer behaviour study might reveal important behavioural segments in your target population, like online vs. in-person shoppers, impulse vs. need-based buyers, and loyal vs. non-loyal customers. These behavioural segments can help you develop and deliver targeted marketing messages.

Types of consumer behaviour

Even if consumers fall into specific behavioural segments, they don't make every purchase decision in the same way. Each purchase comes with its own set of financial, physical, social, and psychological risks—and the same person will act differently based on the weight of the decision at hand.

Complex buying behaviour

When consumers consider making an expensive, infrequent purchase, they typically express complex buying behaviour. This type of consumer behaviour is characterized by exhaustive product research and high involvement in the purchase process. If a person is looking to buy a house, for example, they're probably going to research a bunch of locations and visit all their options in-person before making an offer on a property.

Habitual buying behaviour

If a consumer frequently makes the same purchase, they're expressing habitual buying behaviour. This type of consumer behaviour is powerful because it's largely unconscious. For example, someone might habitually buy the same brand of milk every time they go to the grocery store for years on end. People who are loyal to a certain product usually exhibit habitual buying behaviour.

Variety seeking behaviour

Variety seeking behaviour is the opposite of habitual buying behaviour. People may seek variety because they haven't yet found a suitable product in a particular product category, however consumers don't necessarily express this type of behaviour because they're dissatisfied with the products they've already tried. People might express variety seeking behaviour when buying makeup or video games or when visiting bars and restaurants.

Dissonance-reducing buying behaviour

When consumers are afraid of making the wrong choice, they express dissonance reducing buying behaviour. People with this type of consumer behaviour mull over their options and worry they'll experience buyer's remorse if they buy the wrong product. They may even put off making the purchase to avoid making the wrong choice. After customers make a purchase, they might start to express this type of behaviour if they grow to regret their decision.

Dissonance-reducing Buying Behavior

Consumer behaviour vs customer behaviour

While you can uncover useful customer behaviour metrics in, for example, the data collected by your customer management system, these metrics don't tell the whole story. A customer behaviour study can give you partial insight into buying behaviour, such as customer preferences, frequency of use, and repurchase behaviour, but it has limited applicability for marketers.

A consumer behaviour study takes a more holistic approach to buying behaviour by examining the way it manifests across the entire product lifecycle, including before people become customers. Because consumer behaviour includes the entire target population, it's more useful for marketers.

How to get consumer behavioural data?

Consumer behaviour includes the experiences of people who might buy your product, people who actually buy your product, and people who use your product even though they didn't buy it themselves (for example, a household member or employee of a customer).

Market research and customer satisfaction surveys help you get a complete picture of the buying behaviour of everyone in your target population.

Market research surveys uncover the value drivers that influence people's purchase decisions. This type of survey is an opportunity to delve deeper into the pain points, needs, and wants of your target population, so you know how and why people might choose your product.

More specifically, a consumer behaviour survey identifies the rational and irrational drivers behind the respondent's product decisions. It asks questions like, "Do you typically make decisions about which brand you'll buy beforehand or at the time of purchase?" and "How many other people in your household use this product category?"

Aim your consumer behaviour survey at people from your target population, regardless of whether or not they already know about your product.

Customer satisfaction surveys help you collect both qualitative and quantitative data on your customers' behaviour after they've purchased your product. The results of this type of survey expand your picture of consumer behaviour by exploring how customers use and dispose of your product.

A product feedback survey is often the best way to discover how customers interact with your product.

5.SHORT-TERM AND LONG-TERM ACTION PLANS FOR POSSIBLE SOLUTIONS FOR THE PROBLEMS

How to reduce the mistakes done by consumers while purchasing a product?

Typical risk-reduction strategies used include:

Prospective purchasers carefully inspect the merchandise before purchasing expensive gold jewellery.

- Advertising and Promotional Messages: pay closer attention to product or brand related promotion including advertising messages.
- Shopping Around: comparing offers and prices, inspecting the merchandise.
- Buy Known Brand: using a known, reputable brand as an indicator of quality merchandise.
- Buy from Reputable Store: relying on a reputable retail outlet as an indicator of quality.
- Product Reviews: reading independent reviews in main media (e.g. newspapers, magazines), written by independent experts.
- Online product reviews or consumer-generated testimonials: reading about the experiences of other consumers (e.g. TripAdvisor, Amazon customer reviews).
- Sampling or Limited-scale Trial: where practical, obtaining samples, free trial or a 'test-drive' prior to purchase.
- Manufacturer Specifications: reading information provided by manufacturers e.g. brochures or specs.
- Referrals: obtaining referrals from friends or relatives.
- Sales Representatives: talking to sales reps in retail outlets.
- Product Guarantees: looking for formal guarantees or warranties.

Factors leading to consumer exploitation

- Deceptive and misleading techniques.
- False warranties or guarantees
- Non availability of goods
- Adulteration
- Hoarding
- Black marketing

Consumers attracting techniques

The role of aesthetics and visual fluency in relation to consumer choice

Consumers decide whether or not they like a product within 90 seconds of viewing it for the first time. Therefore, having an aesthetically pleasing product is essential in the marketplace. Studies in processing fluency and consumer behaviour have revealed that “that people prefer visual displays that are easier to process and understand.” and “When a product matches the user’s associations with it is perceived as more attractive.” Visually fluent products draw upon consumer's pre-existing associations with their design elements, leading to a sense of familiarity and understanding with the product at hand. Visual cues such as colour, composition, typography, and imagery are associated with the phenomenon of fluency.

Colour

Research in colour psychology has shown 62-90% of consumer product assessment is based on colour alone. Indeed, colours have been shown to be linked to consumer's perceptions on a product's quality, reliability, and value. The colours blue and black are viewed as being more reliable, valuable, and expensive while yellow, orange, and brown are associated with cheapness and low quality. Therefore, a product intended to be perceived as "high quality" with a predominately orange and brown palette would lack visual fluency and would likely fail to elicit a positive response with consumers. However, this can be advantageous if the consumer is already in the market for an item that is known to be inexpensive, in which case the use of yellow, orange, or brown would be appropriate.

Composition

Composition is another visual tool that has the ability to affect information processing and influence in consumer perceptions. Studies have shown that consumers in western countries will associate products that are right aligned or placed on the right side of a display to be higher quality. Humans also have a centre bias, which makes products that are centred or symmetrical in composition or display seem intrinsically more pleasing. Products that are centred in composition or have centred elements are perceived as being more attractive, popular, and important than products that are left aligned or right aligned. When an object is centred compositionally, it is easier for a viewer to interpret and understand. It becomes more “fluent” and is therefore viewed as being more aesthetically pleasing.

Imagery

Evidence has shown that pictorial imagery correlates to higher instances of consumer recall and recognition. Pictorial imagery is also easier to process and gains consumer's attention faster. There is significant evidence that when consumers are presented with multiple choices, they will view objects more positively and more aesthetically pleasing when surrounded by congruent imagery. After repeated exposure, this familiar imagery becomes incorporated into consumer's visual lexicon and they become “fluent” in it. Images with higher levels of visual fluency are perceived as being more familiar, likeable, and friendly and are therefore more likely to be chosen by consumers.

Typographic elements

Although studies have shown that pictorial imagery is easier for consumers to process and understand, the choice of typography remains an indispensable element of product design. Handwritten and scripted fonts are associated with individuality, femininity, and luxury while sans serif fonts embody energy, cleanliness, and modernity. Font size has also been shown to have a direct correlation on the emotional attributes assigned to a product. One study has shown that larger type size and weight is perceived as more intimidating and authoritative. Although imagery reigns supreme in product design, it is important to note that type is processed just as easily as pictorial information when the consumer is already familiar with the product.

Environmental impact

Consumer behaviour in certain ways affects how much material is used to produce goods, how much material is recycled or composted, how much ends up as pollution, how much ends up in landfills, where goods are produced, how far they travel, and the carbon footprint of manufacturing, transportation, and disposal. Green marketing targets consumers who take the environmental impact of their purchases into account. One 2017 study found no impact of green marketing on consumer behaviour in Bangladesh. The study suggests policies be made that decrease the cost of eco-friendly products. It also encourages the implementation of programs which raise consumer awareness regarding the issue of green consumption.

There are psychological factors which contribute to a consumer's perception surrounding their personal contributions to climate change inducing actions. One of the more well studied biases is referred to as the "better-than-average", or self-enhancing bias.^[182] This bias depicts an individual's tendency to perceive that their actions are superior, especially when compared to peers or demographically similar consumers. It has been found that this cognitive bias is indeed present when considering how consumers perceive their pro-environmental efforts.^[182] This may be a result of information about climate change leading to feelings of guilt and concern, which activates an unconscious thought process (denial, the better-than-average effect, and other cognitive reactions) that leads to a reduced perception of the threat of climate change. It is a mental defence mechanism that ultimately leads to a reduction in perceived individual responsibility to take part in green behaviours and one-planet-living.

Various research studies recommended to understand consumer behaviour

Ethnographic research

Ethnographic research or ethnography has its origins in anthropology. However, marketers use ethnographic research to study the consumer in terms of cultural trends, lifestyle factors, attitudes and the way that social context influences product selection, consumption, and usage. Ethnographic research, also called participant observation, attempts to study consumer behaviour in natural settings rather than in artificial environment such as labs. Different types of ethnographic research are used in marketing including;^[183]

- Observed product usage: observing regular product usage at home or work, to gain insights into how products are opened, prepared, consumed, stored, disposed etc. to gain insights into the usefulness of packaging, labelling and general usage
- Day-in-the-life studies: extended visits during product usage situations to gain insights into norms and consumer expectations

- Accompanied purchase or shop-along: researcher accompanies a shopper on a purchase expedition to gain insights into consumer responses to merchandising and other sales tactics
- Cultural studies: similar to traditional ethnography; extended stays with a group or tribe with a view to uncovering the fundamental rules and conventions that govern behaviour
- Guerrilla ethnography: random observations in public settings to help establish research questions or to gain quick insights into specific behaviours
- Mystery shopping: observations in the retail context with a view to gaining insights into the customer's service experience
- Multiple methodologies: combining ethnographic research methods with conventional research techniques with a view to triangulating results

Trend potters such as Faith Popcorn's Brain Reserve make extensive use of ethnographic research to spot emergent trends.

Consumer Neuroscience

Consumer neuroscience (also known as neuromarketing) refers to the commercial use of neuroscience when applied to the investigation of marketing problems and consumer research. Some researchers have argued that the term consumer neuroscience is preferred over neuromarketing or other alternatives.^{[185][186]}

Consumer neuroscience employs sophisticated bio-metric sensors, such as electroencephalography (EEG), functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI) and eye tracking,^[187] to study the ways that consumers respond to specific stimuli such as product displays, brands, packaging information, or other marketing signals. Such tests reveal stimuli that trigger the brain's pleasure centre.

Consumer neuroscience has become a mainstream component of consumer research methods. International market research company Nielsen Research has recently added neuromarketing to its services by acquiring Innerscope, a company specialising in neuromarketing research thus enabling Nielsen to add neuromarketing research to the suite of services available to clients.^[188]

Consumer neuroscience research has led to some surprising findings:

Framing price or value

For example, one study reported on a magazine subscription where potential subscribers were offered two options: an online subscription for $59, or a combined online and print for $129 a year. Most people chose the online only option. However, when a third option was introduced: print only for $129 (i.e. the decoy), the online and print option seemed like better value and a significant number of people switched to that option. In other words, the decoy price assists in framing value.^[189] Marketers use a variety of methods to frame value: e.g. quote monthly payment options rather than a single all-inclusive price.

Choice fatigue

Research by Sheena Iyengar experimented with the number of gourmet jams on display. When consumers were faced with a large number of alternatives (24 jams), 60% of consumers stopped and looked but only a few (3%) actually made a purchase. However, when consumers faced with fewer brands (6 jams), were more likely to make a purchase with 30% going on to buy something. Similar results have been observed in other categories. The findings suggest that while consumers appreciate being given some choice, the process of making a selection is painful and can lead to choice fatigue.^[190] An issue for marketers and retailers is to determine the 'sweet spot' where consumers are given sufficient choice to satisfy their desire for variety, but not become overwhelmed by it.

Decision paralysis

One study examined the wording used to solicit philanthropic donations. Consumers were exposed to variants in the advertising copy execution: "Would you be willing to help by giving a donation?" and "Would you be willing to help by giving a donation? Every penny will help." Those given the second option were almost twice as likely to donate. The researchers concluded that people are more likely to take action when given parameters. By clarifying that "even a penny" could make a difference, the second line provides guidance and makes the request more achievable.^[191] For marketers, the implication is that when asking consumers to take an action, specifying a small step helps to break through the action paralysis. This finding also suggests that even small differences in advertising copy can lead to improved outcomes. Action instructions will make the advertisement more purposeful

Easy ways to attract consumers

1.Offer new customers discounts and promotions

Consumers today are still looking for value and deals. Lure them into your business by offering introductory discounts, or have specials such as buy 2-get-1-for half-price or free gift wrapping for the first three purchases. Bargains like these can attract new customers who have been considering doing business with you but needed an incentive to actually change their shopping habits. Then track what they buy and which offers they redeemed so you can better target them with future marketing messages that will cement their loyalty.

2.Ask for referrals

Once you gain a customer's loyalty, put that to work for you by asking them for referrals. Current customers are one of the best sources of new customers. But you can't be passive and wait for your them to bring colleagues, friends, and family to your business. Instead, take control and create a systemized approach to actively solicit referrals from your satisfied customers.

Build referral-generating activities into the sales process. Send follow-up emails to make sure customers are happy with their purchases, and then follow that up with another email asking for referrals. Consider offering incentives if the sale price warrants it.

3.Recontact old customers

Go back to your lapsed customers contact list and market to former customers who haven't done business with you for a while. Create a regular schedule to do this (say quarterly) and select customers you haven't seen in six months. Reach out to them via email, direct mail, text, or phone with a "We miss you" message, offering some type of deal or promotion if they'll come back.

4.Network

There's no better way to raise brand awareness than meeting new people, telling them who you are and what you do. Join your trade association, your local chamber of commerce, and networking organizations. Attend Meetup events. If you own a local business, even going to PTA meetings can be a good networking opportunity. Approach networking with a "How can I help you?" attitude, rather than thinking, "What's in it for me?"

5.Update your website

Online search is the primary way both consumers and B2B buyers find new businesses. That means your website has to do the heavy lifting so customers can find you. Review your search engine marketing and search engine optimization tactics and techniques, including making sure your site is mobile-friendly.

Even your site design makes a difference. Too many graphics can slow your site's load speed, which is a customer turnoff. If you don't have the in-house expertise, hire a website design company and/or SEO expert to help.

6.Partner with complimentary businesses

Teaming up with businesses that have a similar customer base, but aren't directly competitive, and then strategizing how you can market to one another's customers to drive new business is a smart way to attract new customers while not spending a fortune. For instance, if you sell baby products, working with a business that sells maternity clothes would be a great partnership.

7.Promote your expertise

By showcasing your industry expertise, you can generate interest and even create buzz, which can help you attract new customers as well as get more business from your existing client base. Volunteering to speak on industry panels, giving a webinar or workshop, speaking at industry events or to groups your target customers belong to, or holding educational sessions are just a few ways you can make a good impression with potential new customers and clients. This technique works particularly well for B2B business owners.

8.Take advantage of online sites and reviewing sites

Consumers, both in the B2B and B2C worlds, frequently turn to online ratings and review sites before they'll do business with a company they are not familiar with. So make sure you monitor those sites and respond to any complaints. Make the most of positive reviews by linking to them on your website. Post signage in your store, office, restaurant, or other location encouraging customers to add their perspectives. Social proof is powerful, and new customers are more likely to give your business a try if they see others praising it.

9.Participate in community events

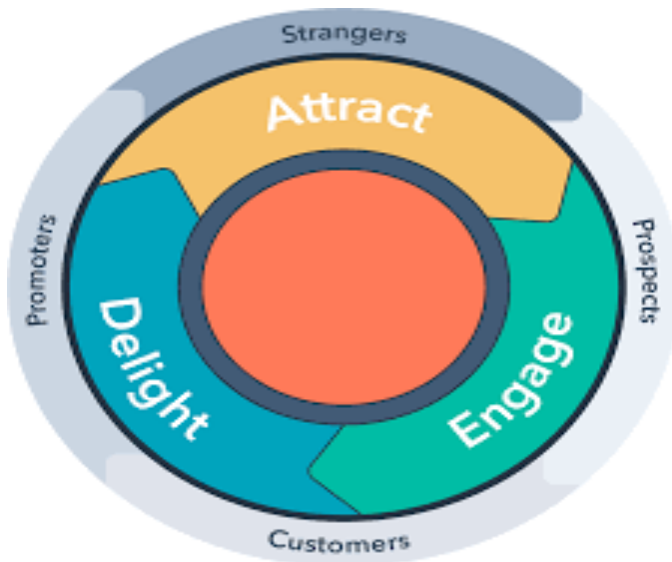

Surveys show most people like to support local, independent businesses. Raise your profile in your community by participating in charity events and organizations. Sponsor a local fun run, organize a holiday "toys for kids" drive, or supply a Little League team in your city with equipment. All this raises your profile, which helps attract new customers.

10.Bring a friend

This idea is similar to referrals but requires customer participation. Offer "bring a friend" deals to get your loyal customers to introduce their friends and colleagues to your business. For instance, a restaurant could offer a "buy one entrée, get a second for free" special to attract more customers.

These are the ways to eradicate the problems of consumers as well as sellers/promoters of the product by clearly understanding the consumer behaviour.

6.COMMUNITY AWARENESS PROGRAMMES CONDUCTED

w.r.t.THE PROBLEMS AND THEIR OUTCOMES

NAME: S.SIVANAGAMALLESWARARAO GARU

PROFESSION: APSRTC CONDUCTOR

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is around Rs.35,000.

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. Yes,I shop regularly and I regularly purchase daily essentials .

- Do you shop online or offline and why?

Ans. I shop offline because to understand the quality and checking expiry of the product.

- Are you loyal to a brand and why?

Ans. No, I try every new brand.

- What do you look for,while buying a product?

Ans. I mainly look for the quality and durability of the product.

NAME: S.LAKSHMI PARVATHI

PROFESSION: HOUSEWIFE

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. No, I do not shop regularly. I mainly purchase clothes and essentials .

- Is price of the product is a concern for you?

Ans. Yes,I check the product whether it is worth of paying that price.

- Do you bargain?

Ans. Yes, I bargain to decrease the price of the product.

- Are you a discount seeker?

Ans. Yes,I look for discount to save money.

- Do you perform any research before buying a product?

Ans. Yes, I enquire my neighbours and search about the product online.

NAME:CH.SRINU GARU

PROFESSION:FARMER

- Do you shop regularly and what products?

Ans. Yes,I shop regularly the products of agriculture like pesticides etc.

- What is the main intent of you buying a product?

Ans. My main intent of buying a product is whether it will fulfil my needs or Not.

- What would be the reason if you reject a product?

Ans. If the product does not fulfill or satisfy need ,I stop using it.

- Do you like to try a new product that entered into a market?

Ans.Yes, I like to try new product in the market.

- Who influences you more while buying a product?

Ans.My friends and family influence more while buying a product.

- Is price a concern for you?

Ans. No,but I consider the quality and durability.

NAME:S.DHANALAKSHMI

PROFESSION: HOUSEWIFE

- What is your husband's monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is Rs.60,000.

- Do you shop online or offline?

Ans. I mostly shop online because availability various product at one site.

- Are you loyal to a brand in buying any product and why?

Ans. Yes,I only buy the products of Hindustan unilever in daily essentials because my husband is an investor of HUL.

- Do you consider the product's quality and its durability or not?

Ans. Yes, I consider the product quality and durability.

- Do you trust E-commerce sites or not?

Ans. Yes,I trust the E-commerce companies and mostly , Flipkart.

- Do you buy the product that is recommended by your favourite star in Ads?

Ans. Yes,I buy the product that is recommended by my favourite star and follow him regularly

NAME:P.LAKSHMANARAO GARU

PROFESSION:SHOPKEEPER

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is around Rs.60,000.

- Are you loyal to a brand and why?

Ans. No, I try every new brand.

- What do you look for,while buying a product?

Ans. I mainly look for the quality and durability of the product.

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. Yes,I shop regularly and I regularly purchase daily essentials .

- Do you shop online or offline and why?

Ans. I shop offline because to understand the quality and checking expiry of the product.

NAME:K.SUJATHA GARU

PROFESSION:SHOP KEEPER

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. No, I do not shop regularly. I mainly purchase clothes and essentials .

- Are you a discount seeker?

Ans. Yes,I look for discount to save money.

- Do you perform any research before buying a product?

Ans. Yes, I enquire my neighbours and search about the product online.

- Is price of the product is a concern for you?

Ans. Yes,I check the product whether it is worth of paying that price.

- Do you bargain?

Ans. Yes, I bargain to decrease the price of the product.

NAME:N.KIRAN KUMAR GARU

PROFESSION:SHOPKEEPER

- What would be the reason if you reject a product?

Ans. If the product does not fulfill or satisfy need ,I stop using it.

- Do you like to try a new product that entered into a market?

Ans.Yes, I like to try new product in the market.

- Who influences you more while buying a product?

Ans.My friends and family influence more while buying a product.

- Is price a concern for you?

Ans. No,but I consider the quality and durability.

- Do you shop regularly and what products?

Ans. Yes,I shop regularly the products of agriculture like pesticides etc.

- What is the main intent of you buying a product?

Ans. My main intent of buying a product is whether it will fulfil my needs or
Not.

NAME:T.KISHORE GARU

PROFESSION:SHOPKEEPER

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is Rs.25,000.

- Do you trust E-commerce sites or not?

Ans. Yes,I trust the E-commerce companies and mostly like Flipkart.

- Do you buy the product that is recommended by your favourite star in Ads?

Ans. Yes,I buy the product that is recommended by my favourite star and follow him regularly

- Do you shop online or offline?

Ans. I mostly shop online because availability various product at one site.

- Are you loyal to a brand in buying any product and why?

Ans. Yes,I only buy the products of Hindustan unilever in daily essentials because I am an investor of HUL.

- Do you consider the product's quality and its durability or not?

Ans. Yes, I consider the product quality and durability.

NAME:N.SUBBARAO GARU

PROFESSION:FARMER

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is around Rs.5,000.

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. Yes, I shop regularly and I regularly purchase daily essentials.

- Are you loyal to a brand and why?

Ans. No, I try every new brand.

- What do you look for, while buying a product?

Ans. I mainly look for the quality and durability of the product.

- Do you shop online or offline and why?

Ans. I shop offline because to understand the quality and checking expiry of the product.

NAME:CH.DURGARAO GARU

PROFESSION: FARMER

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. No, I do not shop regularly. I mainly purchase clothes and essentials .

- Is price of the product is a concern for you?

Ans. Yes,I check the product whether it is worth of paying that price.

- Do you perform any research before buying a product?

Ans. Yes, I enquire my neighbours and search about the product online.

- Do you bargain?

Ans. Yes, I bargain to decrease the price of the product.

- Are you a discount seeker?

Ans. Yes,I look for discount to save money.

NAME:CH.NAGA RAJU GARU

PROFESSION:FARMER

- Do you shop regularly and what products?

Ans. Yes,I shop regularly the products of agriculture like pesticides etc.

- Who influences you more while buying a product?

Ans.My friends and family influence more while buying a product.

- Is price a concern for you?

Ans. No,but I consider the quality and durability.

- What is the main intent of you buying a product?

Ans. My main intent of buying a product is whether it will fulfil my needs or Not.

- What would be the reason if you reject a product?

Ans. If the product does not fulfill or satisfy need ,I stop using it.

- Do you like to try a new product that entered into a market?

Ans.Yes, I like to try new product in the market.

NAME:K.SIVA SAI GARU

PROFESSION: STUDENT

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is Rs.20,000.

- Do you trust E-commerce sites or not?

Ans. Yes,I trust the E-commerce companies and mostly like Flipkart.

- Do you buy the product that is recommended by your favourite star in Ads?

Ans. Yes,I buy the product that is recommended by my favourite star and follow him regularly

- Do you shop online or offline?

Ans. I mostly shop online because availability various product at one site.

- Are you loyal to a brand in buying any product and why?

Ans. Yes,I only buy the products of Hindustan unilever in daily essentials because I am an investor of HUL.

- Do you consider the product's quality and its durability or not?

Ans. Yes, I consider the product quality and durability.

NAME:S.RAFI GARU

PROFESSION:FASHION DESIGNER

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is around Rs.35,000.

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. Yes,I shop regularly and I regularly purchase daily essentials .

- Are you loyal to a brand and why?

Ans. No, I try every new brand.

- What do you look for,while buying a product?

Ans. I mainly look for the quality and durability of the product.

- Do you shop online or offline and why?

Ans. I shop offline because to understand the quality and checking expiry of the product.

NAME:H.JOGENDER GARU

PROFESSION:SHOPKEEPER

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. No, I do not shop regularly. I mainly purchase clothes and essentials .

- Are you a discount seeker?

Ans. Yes,I look for discount to save money.

- Do you perform any research before buying a product?

Ans. Yes, I enquire my neighbours and search about the product online.

- Is price of the product is a concern for you?

Ans. Yes,I check the product whether it is worth of paying that price.

- Do you bargain?

Ans. Yes, I bargain to decrease the price of the product

NAME:P.SUBBARAO GARU

PROFESSION: SHOPKEEPER

- What would be the reason if you reject a product?

Ans. If the product does not fulfill or satisfy need ,I stop using it.

- Do you like to try a new product that entered into a market?

Ans.Yes, I like to try new product in the market.

- Who influences you more while buying a product?

Ans.My friends and family influence more while buying a product.

- Is price a concern for you?

Ans. No,but I consider the quality and durability.

- Do you shop regularly and what products?

Ans. Yes,I shop regularly the products of agriculture like pesticides etc.

- What is the main intent of you buying a product?

Ans. My main intent of buying a product is whether it will fulfil my needs or Not.

NAME:B.CHAKRAVARTHY GARU

PROFESSION:SHOPKEEPER

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is Rs.60,000.

- Do you shop online or offline?

Ans. I mostly shop online because availability various product at one site.

- Are you loyal to a brand in buying any product and why?

Ans. Yes,I only buy the products of Hindustan unilever in daily essentials because I am an investor of HUL.

- Do you consider the product's quality and its durability or not?

Ans. Yes, I consider the product quality and durability.

- Do you trust E-commerce sites or not?

Ans. Yes,I trust the E-commerce companies and mostly like Flipkart.

- Do you buy the product that is recommended by your favourite star in Ads?

Ans. Yes,I buy the product that is recommended by my favourite star and follow him regularly

NAME:S.RAFI GARU

PROFESSION:FASHION DESIGNER

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is around Rs.35,000.

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. Yes,I shop regularly and I regularly purchase daily essentials .

- Are you loyal to a brand and why?

Ans. No, I try every new brand.

- What do you look for,while buying a product?

Ans. I mainly look for the quality and durability of the product.

- Do you shop online or offline and why?

Ans. I shop offline because to understand the quality and checking expiry of the product.

NAME:P.SUBBARAO GARU

PROFESSION:SHOPKEEPER

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. No, I do not shop regularly. I mainly purchase clothes and essentials .

- Are you a discount seeker?

Ans. Yes,I look for discount to save money.

- Do you perform any research before buying a product?

Ans. Yes, I enquire my neighbours and search about the product online.

- Is price of the product is a concern for you?

Ans. Yes,I check the product whether it is worth of paying that price.

- Do you bargain?

Ans. Yes, I bargain to decrease the price of the product

NAME:B.CHAKRAVARTHY GARU

PROFESSION:SHOPKEEPER

- What would be the reason if you reject a product?

Ans. If the product does not fulfill or satisfy need ,I stop using it.

- Do you like to try a new product that entered into a market?

Ans.Yes, I like to try new product in the market.

- Who influences you more while buying a product?

Ans.My friends and family influence more while buying a product.

- Is price a concern for you?

Ans. No,but I consider the quality and durability.

- Do you shop regularly and what products?

Ans. Yes,I shop regularly the products of agriculture like pesticides etc.

- What is the main intent of you buying a product?

Ans. My main intent of buying a product is whether it will fulfil my needs or
Not.

NAME:H.JOGENDER GARU

PROFESSION:SHOPKEEPER

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is Rs.60,000.

- Do you shop online or offline?

Ans. I mostly shop online because availability various product at one site.

- Are you loyal to a brand in buying any product and why?

Ans. Yes,I only buy the products of Hindustan unilever in daily essentials because I am an investor of HUL.

- Do you consider the product's quality and its durability or not?

Ans. Yes, I consider the product quality and durability.

- Do you trust E-commerce sites or not?

Ans. Yes,I trust the E-commerce companies and mostly like Flipkart.

- Do you buy the product that is recommended by your favourite star in Ads?

Ans. Yes,I buy the product that is recommended by my favourite star and follow him regularly.

NAME:L.GANESH GARU

PROFESSION:SHOPKEEPER

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is around Rs.35,000.

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. Yes, I shop regularly and I regularly purchase daily essentials .

- Are you loyal to a brand and why?

Ans. No, I try every new brand.

- What do you look for, while buying a product?

Ans. I mainly look for the quality and durability of the product.

- Do you shop online or offline and why?

Ans. I shop offline because to understand the quality and checking expiry of the product.

NAME:K.RAMESH GARU

PROFESSION:SOFTWARE ENGINEER

- Do you shop regularly or not and what kind of products?

Ans. No, I do not shop regularly. I mainly purchase clothes and essentials .

- Is price of the product is a concern for you?

Ans. Yes,I check the product whether it is worth of paying that price.

- Do you bargain?

Ans. Yes, I bargain to decrease the price of the product.

- Are you a discount seeker?

Ans. Yes,I look for discount to save money.

- Do you perform any research before buying a product?

Ans. Yes, I enquire my neighbours and search about the product online.

NAME:L.CHANDRA GARU

PROFESSION:FARMER

- Do you shop regularly and what products?

Ans. Yes,I shop regularly the products of agriculture like pesticides etc.

- What is the main intent of you buying a product?

Ans. My main intent of buying a product is whether it will fulfil my needs or Not.

- What would be the reason if you reject a product?

Ans. If the product does not fulfill or satisfy need ,I stop using it.

- Do you like to try a new product that entered into a market?

Ans.Yes, I like to try new product in the market.

- Who influences you more while buying a product?

Ans.My friends and family influence more while buying a product.

- Is price a concern for you?

Ans. No,but I consider the quality and durability.

NAME:K.SUNIL GARU

PROFESSION:SHOPKEEPER

- What is your monthly income?

Ans. My monthly income is Rs.60,000.

- Do you shop online or offline?

Ans. I mostly shop online because availability various product at one site.

- Are you loyal to a brand in buying any product and why?

Ans. Yes,I only buy the products of Hindustan unilever in daily essentials because I am an investor of HUL.

- Do you consider the product's quality and its durability or not?

Ans. Yes, I consider the product quality and durability.

- Do you trust E-commerce sites or not?

Ans. Yes,I trust the E-commerce companies and mostly like Flipkart.

- Do you buy the product that is recommended by your favourite star in Ads?

Ans. Yes,I buy the product that is recommended by my favourite star and follow him regularly

NAME:S.LAKSHMANARAO

PROFESSION:SHOE MART OWNER

- How do you attract a consumer?

Ans. I offer discounts in festive period, and place the most selling products in attracting positions for customers.

- What marketing techniques you use in promoting a product?

ANS. Most supermarkets, public spaces, and malls offer free bulletin board space for announcements and advertisements. This method is hit-or-miss, but you should try to make your poster reasonably visible and have removable tabs that the customers can present for a discount. Make each location a different colour to get an idea from the tabs where the most leads are being generated. If one area is producing most of your leads, you can better target your campaign.

NAME:M.SUDARSHAN

PROFESSION: PROFESSIONAL MARKETER

- What is the main problem with the consumer?

Ans. Illiteracy: Most of the consumers in urban and remote areas are illiterate and they are not able to understand the policies of the organization or the government, even they do not understand uses or misuses of products.

- Why it is important to understand consumer behaviour?

Ans. Understanding consumer behaviour is important for businesses because it can help them to make better decisions about their products and services. By understanding why people purchase certain products and how they use them, businesses can adapt their offerings to better suit the needs and wants of their target market.

NAME:N.GOPI

PROFESSION:BAKERY

- What is the main problem with the consumer?

Ans. Consumers must limit the use of cash and encourage digital and contactless payments. It is important for retailers to invest in technologies that can support them in acceptance of digital payments. Pine Labs' newest offering, Plutus QR allows retailers to give their customers the option of quick scan and pay using a static QR code.

- What marketing techniques you use in promoting a product?

Ans. The Internet: It is difficult to overstate the internet's importance to building a successful business. Methods of marketing have stayed pretty much the same across the last 50 years, except for the birth and rapid evolution of the internet. No company (even a local café) should be without, at the very least, a website with vital details such as location and hours. You need a point of access for everyone who Googles first when they want to make a buying decision.

RECOMMENDATIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

THE WAYS TO ATTRACT CONSUMERS AND INCREASE PROFITS

SPECIALIZATION AND NICHE TARGETING

Our research has repeatedly shown that the fastest-growing firms tend to be specialists in a carefully targeted niche – an area of the industry that they understand thoroughly.

Not everyone recognizes specialization as a marketing technique, but in fact, it is among the most powerful. Why? Specialization impacts every aspect of your business; from the audiences you target to the messages you craft. Specialization makes all of your marketing efforts easier, because it tends to define exactly what you do and distinguish you from the competition.

Often, specialization forms the basis of a firm's competitive advantage. If you understand a very particular slice of the marketplace better than anyone else, then you're best-equipped to recognize what matters to them and speak to their needs. Specialization is perhaps the most powerful differentiator.

BLOGS AND ARTICLES

There are two sides to publishing blogs and articles: maintaining your own firm's blog, and also contributing blogs or articles to outside industry publications.

Written content is a great way to project your firm's particular expertise, way of thinking, and problem-solving acumen. Our research shows that more than 50% of buyers would read articles or publications to learn more about a topic important to them professionally. By educating your audiences, you demonstrate your relevance to them and show them your qualifications as an expert.

There is also a second key benefit to blogging. It is an excellent way to increase the drawing power of your website. Search engines like Google look for fresh content on your website. They also give preference to content that is linked to by other sites. A robust guest blogging program coupled with engaging content on your own site is a great marketing technique to deliver these twin benefits.

This is also why blogs and articles are an important part of any effort to cultivate Visible Experts – not to mention a cornerstone of online marketing.

A LEAD GENERATING WEBSITE

A website carries your identity and message to an ever-growing online audience. But it can do more. A lead-generating website is carefully crafted to serve as the hub of your online marketing efforts. Attractive, easy-to-find content is served alongside relevant offers designed to convert visitors into leads, all integrated into a comprehensive lead-generating and nurturing ecosystem. In fact, our latest research shows that going to a firm's website is the second most common way buyers "check out" a professional services provider, with almost 80% reporting have done so.

Because of its central role, a lead-generating website is sometimes called the "Queen of Marketing Materials." It's a key ingredient for turning visitors into fans and fans into clients.

SEARCH ENGINE OPTIMISATION(SEO)

Going hand-in-hand with a lead generating website is a thoughtful strategy for search engine optimization. SEO is really an umbrella term for a variety of techniques designed to make sure that your valuable content gets in front of the right audiences online.

And one of the most important of those strategies is to ensure that your content really is valuable. There is no shortcut here. You must develop well-written content that is truly useful to your specific target audience.

There are also a host of important technical issues to attend to. Your website must be structured and tagged properly and pages should contain the appropriate keywords to signal to the search engine what it is about. It is indeed an art and a science.

SEO isn't a one-time effort, but an ongoing strategy to create quality content that is easy for your audience to find. This is an absolutely crucial technique for generating low-cost, high-quality leads online – and the only reason it's not higher on the list is that its impact is primarily on the online side of your marketing equation.

LINKEDIN

When it comes to networking, trade shows are an efficient offline technique. But you can achieve many of the same aims in the online space with LinkedIn. As the premier social network for professional services, it is a rich source for influential and engaged professional contacts.

Other social media like Twitter are also helpful, but LinkedIn is really the top of the social media food chain for the B2B world. It's not only a way to connect one-on-one, but a hub of focused professional services communities.

LinkedIn has recently placed emphasis on enhancing their "Groups" feature – where thinkers from across industries discuss issues that impact their business today. For firms not already leveraging LinkedIn, it's easy to get started. But just having a passive presence will not yield major benefits. You need to develop good individual profiles for your key team members, have a robust firm page, and actively engage in relevant groups.

An active social media presence also works hand in glove with your blogging and SEO efforts. Sharing valuable content is the currency of social media. It will draw web traffic and increase the impact of SEO through the links that follow.

When you use a diverse array of thoughtful marketing techniques, and they build on one another, they allow you to take your reputation to the next level. With commitment and the right techniques, professional services marketing success is within reach.

CONCLUSION:

- Consumer Behaviour is the study of how consumers select and buy goods, services, ideas to satisfy their needs.
- The consumer behaviour influences the consumers' buying behaviour; hence, it is important to understand consumer behaviour in greater detail.
- The factors affecting consumer behaviour are broadly classified into three categories; Personal, Cultural and Social.
- The cultural factors are the most influential determinant of consumers behaviour. This includes the values and beliefs that individuals of society adopt as a part of society. A child grown in India will have different preferences as compared to a child brought up in any other country.
- The personal factors influencing consumer behaviour includes Age, Life-cycle stage, Occupation, Personality and self-concept and Lifestyle and values.
- The social factors influencing consumer behaviour includes Reference groups, Cliques, Family, Roles and Status.
- The psychological factors influencing consumer behaviour includes the processes of Motivation and Perception.

"A lot of times,
people don't know
what they want
until you show it to them."

Steve Jobs

REFERENCES:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Consumer_behaviour#:~:text=Consumer%20behavior%20is%20the%20study,and%20preferences%20affect%20buying%20behaviour.

<https://blog.hubspot.com/marketing/marketing-techniques>

<https://www.investopedia.com/articles/financial-theory/11/small-business-marketing-techniques.asp>

<https://www.forbes.com/sites/allbusiness/2020/02/28/attract-new-customers-small-business-tips/?sh=52c4a8364d1a>

<https://www.cyberclick.net/numericalblog/en/6-strategies-to-attract-and-retain-clients>

<https://www.consumerprotection.govt.nz/general-help/common-consumer-issues/>

<https://www.youtube.com/c/MagnetBrainsEducation>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8Mbhg5Paows>

https://www.academia.edu/40599014/Consumer_Behaviour_Complete_Project_Report

<https://www.pdfdrive.com/understanding-consumer-behaviour-e34322189.html>

<https://www.pdfdrive.com/contemporary-issues-in-marketing-and-consumer-behaviour-e17083369.html>